Since purchasing my XM Radio earlier this year, I have been completely satisfied with the service provided and with the entertainment necessary for a long DC commute. The recent addition of a traffic and weather station further supports my belief. This service is far more detailed and occurs more frequently than the locally provided radio stations. The decision by the FCC to restrict satellite radio from providing traffic and weather does not serve the general public, only those who own something in this fight, the National Association of Broadcasters. Please remember that the roll of the FCC is to work for the public, not corporations or special interest groups. I respectfully urge you to reject NAB's petition 04-160 and allow satellite radio to continue with their programming.
